THE SERIES OF THE HIGH-LEVEL VIRTUAL DEBATES

INTRODUCTION

In these times of a major health crisis, with global and local concerns, restrictions in mobility and physical distancing, it is key to continue engaging with youth and virtually break the isolation in order to join forces and continue - in spite of the crisis - to be active drivers of change, wherever we are from.

Therefore, based on successful past joint activities, the Anna Lindh Foundation’s Young Mediterranean Voices (YMV) programme alumni, together with the European Parliament’s Young Political Leaders (YPL) alumni, engaged in a series of Virtual Debates with high-level policy-makers from April to July 2020.

Through digital means, youth from different regions and backgrounds, and policy-makers had the opportunity to jointly address critical foreign affairs policy discussions on cross-cutting themes in the framework of intercultural dialogue.

OPEN METHODOLOGY: FROM YOUNG DEBATERS TO DRIVERS OF CHANGE

The methodology is based on principles of active listening, formulating arguments through one’s own background and experience (but considering the regional and global perspectives), as well as constructively incorporating feedback in the compilation of policy recommendations.

These debates with high-level EU representatives, stakeholders in the topics discussed in specific debate sessions, are also based on the skills and attitudes the young people have developed through their participation in YMV, YPL and civil society activities in general. Among those skills are self- and global-awareness, persuasion, empathy, critical thinking, inclusive leadership.

MAINAIMS

OF THE VIRTUAL DEBATES

TARGETED DISCUSSION BETWEEN YOUNG PEOPLE AND EU DECISION-MAKERS ON A SPECIFIC TOPIC: alumni from the Young Mediterranean Voices (YMV) and Young Political Leaders (YPL) programmes, coming from across Europe, the Mediterranean and the Balkans, discussed issues that pertain to current affairs, taking into account the difficult times we are going through with the COVID-19 pandemic.

This took place with the formulation of arguments, recommendations, and responses by the participants, ensuring the emergence of out-of-the-box thinking.

“EU INSTITUTIONS ARE DEMONSTRATING OPENNESS TO EXPLORE MEANINGFUL WAYS TO BRIDGE GEOGRAPHIC & CULTURAL DIVIDES AND TO REACH OUT TO YOUTH AS AGENTS OF CHANGE”.

DR NABIL AL SHARIF
Executive Director of the Anna Lindh Foundation
23 April 2020

The High-level Virtual Debates aimed to

EMPOWER young voices to enhance a culture of public dialogue

SHARED public affairs and media discourses

CREATE a shared understanding with peers across the Mediterranean on how to address issues of common concern to their communities
EMERGENCE OF POLICY RECOMMENDATIONS THAT CAN BE USED BY STAKEHOLDERS IN THEIR DECISION-MAKING PROCESS:

Based on the needs, thoughts, fears, expectations and aspirations of the young people from the various communities, nationalities and population groups, the ideas emerging from the dialogue were formulated in a short-but-concise set of policy recommendations around the specific topic discussed.

The policy recommendations take into account the inter-regional character of the group, thus making the recommendations more inclusive and well-rounded.

STRUCTURE

The series of Virtual Debates was organised by the Anna Lindh Foundation jointly with the European Parliament’s Mediation and Dialogue Support Unit, from April to July 2020:

HIGH-LEVEL VIRTUAL DEBATE (1):
YOUTH, PEACE AND SECURITY: THE POSITION OF EURO-MED YOUTH

23 April 2020

ABOUT THE DEBATE

The Virtual Dialogue was an opportunity for young leaders from the Euro-Mediterranean region to exchange with EU ambassadors to the UN about the implementation of the Youth, Peace and Security agenda and recommendations for the future. Conclusions of the discussion were integrated in the EU statement to the Security Council on 27 April 2020.

The Virtual Debate was facilitated by Aissam Benaissa, Online Debate Community Manager (ALF).

The dialogue was attended by 7 Young leaders from Libya, Morocco, Italy, Portugal, France, Palestine and Israel (5 speakers from Young Mediterranean Voices and 2 speakers from Young Political Leaders).

THEME AND GUIDING QUESTIONS

The dialogue between the young people and the EU policy-makers, centered on the following set of questions:

• What are examples of best practices in the implementation of the Youth, Peace and Security agenda on both sides of the Mediterranean?
• What role can the EU play to promote and facilitate the work of young people in the field of peace and security?
• What are the main challenges for the implementation of these resolutions? How can the United Nations ensure that young people’s priorities are included in international responses and that the youth, peace and security agenda is fully integrated in its strategic tools?
• What are the unexplored resources for the creation of the conditions for the inclusion of youth in the peace and security issues locally and regionally?
HIGHLIGHTS OF THE DISCUSSION

During the dialogue, the young people stressed the necessity to incorporate their voices in bottom-up decision-making processes related to the Security Council’s youth peace and security agenda. Insights were provided on EU-supported Programmes for youth-led dialogue: Marjus Ceveli, Erasmus+ Virtual Exchange alumni from Italy, highlighted how platforms such as the “Young Mediterranean Voices” (co-funded by DG Neighbourhood and Enlargement Negotiations) and “Erasmus+ Virtual Exchange” (funded by the DG Education and Culture) could strengthen the network of youth peace builders by facilitating a “safe digital space for intercultural exchange”.

Fatima Zahra Outais, YMV Alumni from Morocco highlighted: “African peace initiatives are driven by youth who believe they are drivers not subjects. There remains a need to overcome structural barriers and intergenerational gaps”.

Ammon Morag, a YPL Alumni, underlined the need to invest in unexplored “digital spaces and platforms” to engage hard to reach communities of young people.

In his own reflections, H.E. Mr. Olof Skoog, Head of the European Union Delegation to the United Nations called for “international solidarity and intercultural dialogue to counter Coronavirus effects” and highlighted “the need to find digital ways to engage young people in decision-making.”

Ms Gueguen, Deputy Permanent Representative for France to the UN, underlined the risks of “insufficient investment in education” and agreed with the demand for “support to youth-led dialogue initiatives”.

“SUPPORT THE FOUNDATION’S WORK IN THE MEDITERRANEAN TOWARDS A BETTER UNDERSTANDING OF THE REGION, TO FIGHT GROWING MISTRUST AND POLARISATION”.

The discussion was the second in a series of virtual debates, aiming to factor in multi-dimensional youth perspectives in the process of cross-cultural decision-making. Young leaders expressed their opinions on the COVID19 impact on youth policies and institutions. Restrictive measures on freedom of movement as well as the fight of disinformation and the need to enforce digital infrastructures, were highlighted as potential threats in the aftermath of the Crisis.

1. Challenges and Solutions for Youth Inclusion and Equality Across Cultures
   The inclusion of youth in the measures taken during the COVID-19 crisis and in the recovery phase (education, societal, economic and political): what has been the situation in your communities and your region? How can opportunities and inclusion for youth-led dialogue with policy-makers be established after the pandemic?

2. Youth promoting exchanges and reconciliation in the framework of intercultural dialogue
   Focus on the importance of breaking the isolation and engaging with others – What innovative solutions (including tech-enabled solutions), based on ‘out-of-the-box’ thinking can we apply to remedy the weaknesses we have observed in youth policies and institutions? (Best practices and own experience)
3. Solidarity and cooperation within and across communities

Examples and recommendations on how to include youth perspectives in policies (including external policies), and how to bridge the gap between youth and regional and international institutions, to build more open, inclusive and resilient societies.

This discussion was the third in a series of virtual debates, aiming to factor in youth perspectives in the process of cross-cultural decision-making.

THEME AND GUIDING QUESTIONS

Youth perspectives in building trust in the media, through intercultural dialogue

During the online dialogue, participants from the Euro-Mediterranean region and the Western Balkans countries shared experiences on youth perspectives on building trust in the media and through intercultural dialogue.

As communities are facing challenges such as hate speech, radicalisation and conflicts, a focus on the hosting of inclusive dialogue is needed. The subsequent production of policy recommendations as part of this event, explores reforms based on critical and creative thinking, narratives challenging misperception, and youth enabling environments.

The guiding questions revolved around: Media Awareness and Youth, Role of media in facilitating intercultural dialogue and reconciliation and Role of institutions in bridging the gap between media and youth.
HIGHLIGHTS OF THE DISCUSSION

Young delegates from the Euro-Mediterranean and Western Balkans regions explored reforms focused on the importance of promoting media literacy amongst young people, supporting the safeguard of media pluralism and fostering reconciliation and facilitating intercultural dialogue. They suggested a number of concrete policy recommendations, focused on bridging the gap between youth, media and institutions.

Ahmed Yassin, YMV Alumni from Egypt, stressed:
“There is a need to create a youth-oriented Media Platform with the capacity to withstand the fast pace of information streaming and to connect and promote collaboration between today’s media landscape and: young artists, researchers, content creators, advocators, social media influencers and fake news checkers.”

In their reflections on the theme and the context of the conversation, Christian Danielson underlined that
“The European Commission supports the work of the Foundation and will ensure the necessary support for the Foundation’s future. Intercultural dialogue is essential between institutions, youth and civil society”.
He also highlighted the need to address issues of media and digital literacy, fact checking and accountability.

Ilhan Kyuchyuk, MEP and Vice-Chair of the Delegation to the EU-Turkey Joint Parliamentary Committee, stressed the importance of fighting disinformation and fake news in order to protect and safeguard fundamental rights, such as media freedom. In this regard, he mentioned an initiative of the European Parliament to create a Digitalisation Committee to fight disinformation. He also underlined that the use of information and communication is essential to healthy pluralistic democracies, as well as to ensure mutual understanding among people and between cultures.

JOSEP BORELL

16 June 2020

ARIADNA ROMANS
YMV Alumni from Spain, underlined the need to “PROMOTE TRUSTFUL MEDIA THOUGH COMMON POLICIES AND REGULATION THAT RESPOND TO THE NEEDS OF YOUNG PEOPLE AND ENHANCE FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION”.

NATAN ALBAHARI
YPL Alumni from Serbia, also underlined

THE NEED TO PROVIDE FREE DIRECT ACCESS TO PRESS AGENCIES FOR MEDIA OUTLETS, AS WELL AS TO DEVELOP INDEPENDENT SOCIAL MEDIA ALGORITHMS ADAPTED TO LOCAL CONTEXTS.
*The formulation of policy recommendations will take into account the inter-regional character of the group and will be disseminated amongst relevant stakeholders and policy-makers. While it is not currently feasible to organise face-to-face encounters, the Anna Lindh Foundation continues to explore meaningful ways to bridge geographic and cultural divides and to reach out to young people as agents of change.

Key partners for the High-level Virtual Debates are:

ANNA LINDH MEDITERRANEAN FOUNDATION FOR INTERCULTURAL DIALOGUE

Established in 2005 on the initiative of then President of the European Commission, the Anna Lindh Foundation (ALF) is a 42-country intergovernmental institution working from the Mediterranean to promote intercultural and civil society dialogue in the face of growing mistrust and polarisation. ALF is co-creator of “Young Mediterranean Voices” and member of the Global Coalition for Youth, Peace and Security, and member of the consortium of the EU Funded Programme “Erasmus + Virtual Exchange”. The ALF works on a three-way approach: Empowering young voices by providing platforms for young people to build together more open, inclusive and resilient communities; introducing impactful research on international policymaking, providing a unique understanding of conflict dynamics through research and opinion-leadership; and leading a movement and bringing together our networks to inspire other civil societies and multiplying our impact in that way.

YOUNG POLITICAL LEADERS

The European Parliament’s Young Political Leaders Programme acknowledges the importance of building dialogue between future political leaders in order to develop a climate of trust and confidence that will ultimately lead to a more peaceful world. By connecting young political activists from non-EU countries with one another and with their counterparts in the European Parliament, experiences of peace and democracy can be shared and further developed.

DELEGATION OF THE EUROPEAN UNION TO THE UNITED NATIONS

The European Union (EU) has Delegations accredited to the UN in Geneva, Paris, Rome, Vienna, Nairobi and New York. Their role is to coordinate the EU’s day-to-day relations with the UN. The Delegations also report back to EU headquarters in Brussels on the UN’s activities. Their reports feed into the political agenda in Brussels, which in turn creates a framework for operations at the local level. In addition, the Delegations work closely with EU countries which have a presence at UN offices.
